NEWS FROM EVERYWHERE FOR THE READER'S EYE.

Blaine is Displeased, but the Canadian Government Can Stand It—A Foolish Man Goes to Sea in a Cockboat—Tumble Weeds on a Railroad Track.

ST. PAUL, Nov. 20.—The four thousand tickets of the Chicago, St. Paul & Kansas City railroad, good from St. Paul to Chicago which have been causing all the trouble in rates from this point by being sold below the regular price, are in the hands of a local ticket broker named Pelsch. It is stated if rates are made regular at $9 as threatened by Chairman Finlay of the Western Passenger Association at Chicago Pelsch will reduce his price to $7.50 and if that rate is met he will withdraw the tickets until the rates are restored.

Another Fool Man.

NEW YORK, Nov. 20.—Capt. Francis L. Norton, inventor of the compressed air and water ballast system in lifeboats, who recently crossed the ocean from New York to Paris in the little yawl Neversink, is about to attempt another dangerous but interesting feat in the F. L. Norton. The Norton measures 58 feet over all. Her beam is 12 feet, and she has a draught of 6 feet 4 inches when loaded with eight tons of coal, her fuel capacity. She can steam eight miles an hour with thirty horsepower engines, but her commander expects to run at least 250 miles a day, burning but half a ton of coal. She carries an enormous amount of canvas for such a small vessel, and her speed will be greatly increased when a favorable wind prevails. Capt. Norton expects to arrive in Toulon in about nine days. A short stop will be made at Fayal for water and provisions.

Will Not Prosecute.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Nov. 20.—The case against young H. H. Wentworth who by his own confession took $5,300 from the Lime Rock National Bank, has been dropped. Neither the American Guarantee Company which was on Wentworth's bond nor the bank wishes to press the case. It is said that the bank is afraid that the disclosures which would be made by the trial would injure the institution, the amount taken being believed to be much larger than that stated. The Guarantee Company makes good its loss to the bank and Wentworth's family have repaid the company. It is also said that Wentworth's arrest was purposely made by the state officials who had no jurisdiction in the case, it being a federal institution. Business men are indignant at the bank's action. The bank examiner, however, may take action in the matter.

Working on Sunday.

NASAVILLE, Nov. 18.—R. M. King, a Seventh Day Adventist, in Obion county, was some time ago convicted of violating the Sabbath day by ploughing on Sunday. The State Supreme Court sustained the sentence and an appeal was taken to the federal circuit court. Judge Hammond has granted a writ of habeas corpus returnable the 24th. The Natural Society of Adventists has retained ex-Postmaster-General Dickinson as counsel to test the right of Adventists to work or amuse themselves on the Christian Sabbath as they choose.

Weeds Stop a Train.

PORTLAND, Nov. 18.—A train on the Hunt system loaded with stock was detained in a deep cut all night last night by tumble-weeds on the track. These weeds, which grow to the height of about two feet, with incurving branches, flourish on summer fallow in that section, and when torn up by harrows roll before the wind till stopped by a fence or a railroad cut. The train, on entering the cut at dusk, found the track covered with these weeds, while thousands more came leaping in like a flock of sheep, and being crushed beneath the wheels of the locomotive greased the track and held the train till morning.

Tribute to British Seamen.

LONDON, Nov. 19.—Lord George Hamilton, first lord of the admiralty, speaking at Bedford to-night, said the British navy was superior to that of any power in Europe or America. He praised the coolness displayed by the captain and crew of the Serpent in face of death. Such disasters, he remarked, are a part of the price England pays to be mistress of the sea. He added that the admiralty intended to pension the widows and remunerate the families of the men who lost their lives in the wreck.

Ghastly Particulars.

LONDON, Nov. 19.—Accounts of the wrecking operations at the scene of the loss of the Serpent give some ghastly particulars. Many of the bodies are found to be headless, others are cut in two, and all are mutilated in some way by the cruel rocks. The parish priest at Camarinas declares there is a current of resistless strength at that point which has given it the reputation of being the most dangerous spot on the whole Spanish coast. Numerous wrecks occur there every year.

BERLIN, Nov. 18.—Professor Koch is chagrined over the appearance of lupus in a patient reported cured. This is the only instance of return of the disease after supposed cure.

VIENNA, Nov. 18.—Several doctors who have returned from Berlin express doubts as to the radical cure of lupus by Koch's treatment. Leading Austrian specialists warn the faculty against over-estimating the efficacy of Koch's method. They say that no perfectly established cures have yet been made, and think it possible that a strong reaction of the remedy may prove dangerous to weak lungs. Three deaths attributed to this cause have already been reported.

DEPEW AND BLAINE.

Reciprocity Would Widen the Markets of America—Suggestive Speeches.

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—The one hundred and twenty-second annual banquet of the New York Chamber of Commerce was held to-night. President Smith in his address said he was profoundly convinced that reciprocity is the key which will open wide the door of commercial intercourse, and give to us a national outlet for surplus products.

Chauncey M. Depew spoke at length on the recent events in the financial world. In the course of his speech he said:

Within the past few weeks we have stood the strain of the re-purchase of all our bonds and stocks which Europe desired to sell. It was a fearful test, but it has superbly demonstrated the strength of our financial situations, the soundness of our credit and the permanency of our prosperity. The breaking of the dam of this European reservoir may pour upon us a stream of securities which will reduce values 25 or 50 per cent. Such a contraction would at certain times suspend the business of the country, and bring about bankruptcy and ruin. These possibilities will be avoided as we grow rich enough to absorb our securities, but to increase our available resources we must enlarge the area of the market for our surplus product. The solution of the dangerous problem and of our future prosperity lies largely in the direction of commercial reciprocity among the nations of all America.

Carl Schurz made a brief address, calling for such a revision of the tariff as will deliver our manufacturing industries from the artificial burdens which increase the cost of those things they have to use in production and give them a fair chance for export trade.

Ex-President Cleveland was called on to say something. Depew had mentioned that Congressman Springer had nominated Cleveland for the next presidental campaign, and said he hoped the Republicans would nominate that champion of reciprocity, James G. Blaine. Mr. Cleveland was not on the programme to speak, and arising made a few remarks. He said:

We have heard a good deal to-night about reciprocity with the Spanish-speaking people. Now, if it is good with them, why isn't it good to have reciprocity with our own people. We have heard about France helping out England and the United States financially; why cannot they do so commercially? I am sorry my friend Depew mentioned what Mr. Springer said, for it does not seem to me of much importance, and, of no interest to you gentlemen.

Mr. Cleveland jocularly referred to the banquet at Albany a few years ago, when Depew nominated him for the presidency and hoped the Republican party would nominate "that grandest of statesmen, the plumed knight, the name which rises to your lips, but not to mine." Cleveland added that he had reason to believe it was put that way owing to Depew's extreme modesty. He had said at the time that when he got a good chance he would put in a good word for Mr. Depew's candidacy, and asked if this evened up Springer's remarks.

BLAINE NOT PLEASED.

Our Government's Actions in Several Matters Not Exactly Fair.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17.—It is said that Secretary Blaine is not altogether pleased with the manner in which the Canadian government is conducting itself with regard to the various matters the two countries are interested in. The seal fisheries is one of the most difficult problems that the state department has to consider, and as it is shown that the Canadian poachers have secured about twice as many seals as the authorized company which secured the sealing privileges of the Alaskan islands, there is talk that this company will throw up its contract and demand restitution from the United States. Secretary Blaine has also encouraged some opposition from the Canadians in the negotiations he has had with the South American and West Indian governments relative to reciprocity. Agents of the Canadian government have been traveling through the West Indian islands and South American countries, offering reciprocal advantages to them in exchange for the goods produced by the Canadian farmers. These two diplomatic difficulties have agitated the secretary, and they explain the reasons why he gave voice to the opinions relative to the advantages which Canadian railroads secured from the United States in the matter of shipment of goods in bond to and from this country, at the hearing before Secretary Windom last week. Secretary Blaine is understood to believe that Canada through the railroad connections and by the warship bluff in Behring Sea, is getting the best of the United States.

THE ANNUAL BAZAAR IN AID OF ST. ANN'S ORPHANAGE.

Philharmonic Hall Decorated With Fancy Work and Swarms of Busy Ladies—A Description of the Booths—Some Pretty Things to be Obtained There.

The efforts of the ladies of the R.C. pro-Cathedral have so often been crowned with success that it would be hard to conceive that a bazaar arranged by them should meet with anything but success. This fact has been brought out year by year at their annual bazaar held in aid of the St. Ann's Orphan Home, at the Philharmonic Hall. The event has been the principal thing held in the hall for years past, and the walls, if they could only talk, might tell of some things that have in years gone past been offered for sale in Philharmonic Hall. This year is no exception to the years gone past, but quite the contrary, the doors were thrown open at noon to-day under the most promising circumstances.

At the hour of opening the booths it is true had not been thoroughly arranged, but those who went there at that time were in quest of something to satisfy the inner man and make the outer man more cheerful. The dining-room, which of course was the cause of the rush from business at noon to-day, was nicely decorated, and the victuals, well every Victorian knows how the ladies engaged in this bazaar undertake that part of their annual fair. The tables were prettily dressed, and the eatables served by the young ladies were as palatable as they were nice looking. Mrs. Madigan and Mrs. Dunlevy superintended this department, and they had a splendid staff of assistants in Mesdames Reid, McGattagan and Devost, and Misses Deasy, Dwyer, Donnelly and O'Connor. The ladies had all they could do to-day, a large number of business men and others dining there.

On entering the main hall the first thing that meets the visitor's eye is the flower stand in the center of the hall, but unfortunately the bad weather of the last few days have deprived the ladies of stocking this booth as it is usual for them to do. Miss Annie Shaw has charge of this department and she was to-day engaged in making the few flowers obtainable show off to the best advantage, and she was eminently successful, and no doubt the gentlemen visitors will be able to find button hole boquets as plentiful as ever. The first booth to the right of entrance is presided over by Misses Ella Madigan and McNiffe, who are there for the purpose of quenching the thirst of those who care for soda water and light temperance drinks. This table will command the attention of the younger class of visitors, while the booth adjoining will be frequently visited by the married ladies in quest of plain goods such as aprons, underwear, etc., for themselves and their children. Mrs. Theo. Davie and Miss C. Campbell have the plain work in hand and will attend to their customers and be able to supply them with useful articles.

From the next table a Christmas present for the children can easily be picked, it being well stocked with dolls dressed in the latest styles, and little playthings to please the young mind. Miss Teportman and Miss Dougherty are attending at this table.

The fancy table, perhaps the chief booth in the hall, is next in order, and what is to be found there it would be hard to mention. All the articles show that the ladies have have not been idle and silk floss and blush has not been spared to make beautiful ornaments for household decoration. Pincushions, cushions, tidies, table scarfs, toilet sets, and everything that go so far towards make home beautiful are here shown. There are two of these tables burdened with pretty things, but by to-morrow night the ladies in charge, Mesdames Astrico, Beckingham and Sehl, and Miss Skinner, are confident of having them lightened.

A little tent thrown up will be the next object to attract the visitor making the rounds of the hall and if a stranger, will no doubt timidly ask the meaning of it. Fortune telling will be the answer, but as we have never seen the interior of the little canvas house, of course an opinion cannot be passed, so visitors must go in enquire of Miss C. Cameron for themselves.

Cigars and confectionary come next, and if not visited at the beginning visitors must call here before going, and either take a cigar to smoke on the way home or buy candies for the children left at home. The wants of customers at this booth will be generously served by Miss S. Cameron.

This is the last booth to be visited, that is true, but then there are others who want your attention for a little while before departing. Those young ladies flitting around amongst the crowd with lists of names, you must not ignore them, and they only have one chance left and you must take that. The raffles, yes, they are after you to take chances, and the lucky one will be well rewarded, as the articles to be raffled are indeed beautiful. A large ottoman chair is perhaps the chief article, but it is followed by things, although smaller, equally as pretty, and all well worth trying for by taking a chance to win. Besides those ladies mentioned as booth keepers, there are others who are to be complimented on the success of the annual fair. Mrs McQuade, president; Mrs. Nicholson, secretary-treasurer; and Mesdames Geiger, Burns, Lubbe, Brown, Darie, Reid, Redmond and other ladies of the church, assisted by the Sisters of St. Ann's, have all worked hard to make a success of an undertaking that goes so far towards the support of St. Ann's orphans' house, where there are housed, fed, clothed and trained a large number of girls, who in their tender years have lost fathers and mothers and are perhaps without a relative in the world. For these children the ladies exert themselves, and they deserve the support of every citizen. The hall will be open until 11 o'clock to-night, and all day to-morrow, until the same hour to-morrow night. Meals and refreshments are served all afternoon, and those wishing to dine there can do so with entering the main hall.

DILLON AND O'BRIEN SENTENCED

The Irish Leaders Found Guilty—They Go to England Before February.

DUBLIN, Nov. 19.—At Clonmel, today, a verdict of guilty was rendered against William O'Brien, John Dillon and Patrick O'Brien, members of parliament; and against John Cullinine, Thos. Walsh, Patrick Mockles and Bolton for conspiring to indube tenants on the Smith-Barry estates not to pay rent. William O'Brien and Dillon were each sentenced to two terms of imprisonment of six months each, the sentences to run concurrently. Patrick O'Brien and Cullinine were each sentenced to six months imprisonment, Walsh, Mockler and Bolton to four months each, with hard labor. The convicted defendants, who were present in court, were removed immediately to the police headquarters at Clonmel, and thence to jail. They were cheered by the populace outside the courthouse. John Cummings said he would under no circumstances submit to wearing prison clothes or other indignities. Father Humphrey was received with an ovation.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Nov. 19.—News of the sentences imposed upon Dillon and O'Brien by the magistrates at Clonmel was conveyed to these gentlemen by a United Press reporter. In reply, Mr. O'Brien said: "It makes no difference to us. We shall do our duty here; stay here as long as we intended, and go back just when we like, irrespective of what has been done on the other side by police courts, or what not."

"When do you expect to go back?"

"About the time that the spring session of parliament is called together. That is in February, I think."

"Is it true that the American Irish party is drafting a manifesto, expressing complete confidence in Parnell?"

"No; nothing of the kind has been done yet. It may be of course, but I have heard nothing of it yet."

"Do you think it likely that Parnell will retain the leadership of the Irish parliamentary party?"

"I have no doubt of it," said Mr. O'Brien, and Dillon also intimated that these were his sentiments.

O'Brien went on to say that he had complete confidence in Parnell.

SPORTING NOTES.

Brief Resume of Sporting Matters Here and Elsewhere.

A remarkable performance in trap shooting occurred recently on the grounds of the Carteret Gun club at Bergen Point. One of the best trap shooters of New York squatted on the ground at 30 yards' rise with his back towards the traps, his adversary giving the signal to pull the trap for him. His opponent shot in the usual fashion at 28 yards' rise. The result of the match was 41 killed for the squatter and 41 for the man standing.

The recent football match between Princeton and Pennsylvania is recorded as the most disgraceful game ever played.

D. J. Canary, the famous trick rider, recently rode down the Capitol steps at Washington on a safety bicycle.

A sporting paper says: A young Russian has created a sensation in European cycling circles by riding on a bicycle from St. Petersburg to London in thirty-two days. There is a slight stretch somewhere; there is a sea between the cities mentioned.

A. J. Alexander of Woodlawn farm, Lexington, has lost by death from old age the celebrated son of Lexington and Glorlana, Pat Malloy, 25 years old. He was not only a great racehorse himself but sired many, such as Lord Murphy, Ozark, Gen. Harvey, Volusia, Rambler, Favor, Lenore, Bob Myles, Irish Pat, Effie H., Sovereign Pat, Pathfinder, Sallie O, Joyful, Hattie B, Rollin Hawley, Prodigal Son, Happiness, Reveller, Mary Malloy, Jersey Pat, P. Line, Idle Pat, Jim Shelby, Roysterer and Sullivan.

TRUE BILLS AGAINST SLAVIN AND MCAULIFFE

At the opening of the Newington and South London sessions the chairman, Mr. Ealin, in charging the grand jury, only referred briefly to the case of Frank P. Slavin and Joe McAulid, saying: "It is needless for me to remind you that a prize fight is an indictable offence."

The jury could not hesitate, but returned a true bill against the men.

TURF.

Wesley P. Balch, the famous horseman has copied Fred Archer's act and shot himself. The cause assigned for the deed was financial embarrassment. It is said that Mr. Balch had sold some horses for a man some weeks ago for several thousand dollars, and expected the man to call at his office yesterday for the proceeds. The money had all gone, it is said, Mr. Balch having spent it. Knowing this he did not dare to face the man, and so decided to kill himself. He was about 65 years old and was married.

FOR BIG MONEY.

NEW YORK, Nov. 20.—Two of the best wing shots in the world, Charles McAlister and Capt. Elliot of Kansas City, will soon shoot at live pigeons for the largest stakes ever wagered on a bird "race," twenty thousand dollars if the efforts to bring about the match which are now under way are successful. Since Westerner defeated Edgar Murphy at Long Branch, early in the fall, McAlister's friends have been trying to bring about a meeting between the "Nervy Quaker" and Capt. Elliott. Both are willing to shoot for $20,000 a side, and Elliot will agree to shoot at 30 yards rise and 50 yards boundary, which conditions are said to be in favor of the match, which may be arranged within a week. Several shooting grounds have been suggested at which to shoot the "race," but from present indications the Westminister Kennel Club at Babylon, Long Island, will be selected.

ALL ABOUT EIDER-DOWN.

How the Eider Duck Makes Her a Nest, and How It Is Robbed.

The Famous "Holms" on the Low Islands Off the Coast of Norway—How the Down Is Stolen by Professional Hunters of the Article.

The wonderfully soft and warm substance which we call eider-down, says L. B. Fletcher in the New York Home Journal, is produced by the eider duck, an inhabitant of the Arctic Ocean. It is proper to call these birds inhabitants of the ocean, for they pass the greater part of their lives far out at sea, only coming to land for a little while in spring for the purpose of laying and hatching their eggs.

They are very awkward on land, but are wonderful swimmers and divers, descending twelve fathoms below the surface of the water and remaining submerged as long as five minutes at a time. Their food consists principally of mollusks, which they pick up from the bed of the sea.

Their favorite laying places are certain small, low islands off the coast of Norway, which are called "eider-holms." The birds visit these islands in pairs, which present a striking contrast in appearance, the drakes being brilliantly colored in black, white and green, while the females are of a dull reddish brown, matching the color of the scanty vegetation so perfectly that even a practiced hunter can hardly discover them when they crouch down among the reeds.

On coming ashore the duck proceeds very deliberately to choose a place for a nest, while the drake follows and occasionally gives warning of real or fancied danger. The duck is very hard to suit, and it is not an unusual thing for her, after examining all likely spots out of doors, to march boldly into a house and coolly select what she considers a suitable place for her nest, such as the oven if it happens to be unused at the time. The human inmates of the house welcome her gladly, supply her with food, and cheerfully submit to any small inconveniences like the temporary loss of their oven, for they know that their guest will pay a good price for her board and lodging. When the duck has selected a place she gathers grass and sticks and builds her nest. Then she plucks the soft down from her breast and makes a wonderful mat, which not only covers the bottom of the nest but rises so far above the edge that it can be folded over the eggs when the duck leaves the nest in search of food.

When the six or eight eggs are laid they are seized, together with the valuable eider-down mat, by the people of the house, and the duck goes off in sorrow to her mate, who awaits her on the shore, as his courage never rises to such a pitch as to lead him into the house.

The duck, somewhat wiser than before, proceeds to build another nest out of doors, and as her own down feathers are exhausted she calmly plucks the drake's breast as bare as her own. After this outrageous treatment he goes off in disgust and rejoins his companions at sea. This time the duck is allowed to hatch her brood without human interference. But whenever she leaves the nest two or three eggs are liable to be stolen by some other duck who has a nest near by. The marauder carefully folds the down coverlid over the robbed nest again and carries the stolen eggs to her own nest. In this way the eggs are changed about so that a duck may finally hatch out a brood containing not a single one of her own offspring. As soon as the ducklings are all hatched out the mother or foster-mother, if undisturbed, endeavors to lead her flock to the shore.

This march to the sea is to the ducklings what teething is to human infants, the most "trying" time of their lives, for they are exposed to the attacks of birds of prey and other enemies. Usually the islanders interfere again at this point, but now their interference benefits the ducks as well as themselves. They gather the down and carry the ducklings in baskets to the shore, the old duck following them very contentedly.

When the shore is reached the baskets are emptied into the water. The old ducks plunge in, and after a good deal of commotion swim out to sea, each followed by a flock of ducklings, some of which she has never seen before.

The duck does not always make her first nest in a house, of course, and if the first nest is not disturbed she will simply hatch her brood and put to sea with them, and the drake will not be robbed of his feathers. But the islanders are very watchful, and the first nest rarely escapes, no matter where it is built.

Sometimes the duck's down is sufficient to supply the second nest, and in this case the drake remains with his family. This nest is then robbed also, and the poor duck is forced to begin a third, with the help of the drake's down feathers. The rule among the eider-down hunters is to rob every nest until the drake's feathers, which differ in color from those of his mate, appear among the down. When this occurs it is known that the pair will build no more that year, and so the eggs are allowed to hatch in order to preserve the species.

A single nest will furnish at least an ounce of down, which is worth on the spot about twenty-five cents of our money. As the birds visit the island in vast numbers the collection and sale of the down mats is an important source of income to the inhabitants.

Green-Haired Men in Nevada.

There is a curious effect wrought on the hair and beard of men engaged in the Martin White mine at Ward. The ore is roasted, but no disagreeable perfumes arise from the heating process, yet there is some unknown substance that changes the hair, beard, and eyebrows as green as grass. The hair is not injured, but retains its softness and gloss. It is probable that fumes of the green tint of copper contained in the ore change the hair to that color.

A WORD ABOUT BORES.

Even the Most Incorrigible of the Ilk Can Be Advised.

"I wonder if I ever bore my friends as that friend bores me?" sighed a gentleman as he bowed out a visitor from his office.

Certainly, every body is at times a bore, for this question of bores has two sides, writes Harkley Harker in the New York Weekly. There is no such thing as boring with an auger into a granite block. There is no such thing as boring with your finger into a pine log. A social bore must meet a social sensitive. Some men are never bored by anybody; they are of such unfailing good nature, such philosophic patience and helpfulness toward all, they read men so clearly and judge them so charitably, that the most persistent, bothersome fellow does not exasperate nor weary them. They say some skillful word, they listen, yet go on with their own affairs, they are masters of tact, and they are wise enough to foresee that the time may come when themselves will want a favor.

But there are others to whom even a lovely child is a bore. Their best friends bore them more than half the time. These people are in a chronic condition of selfishness, and every one bores them who fails to contribute something to their majesties' comfort or happiness. More than half the bores are not bores at all. In fact we ourselves are boreable—we are hypersensitive. We want our friendships to be all receipts and no outgoes; and if a friend insists on our doing a little something for him by way of amusement in return we are bored. I say we; yet not all of us, kind reader, at all times. We mean to give and take [illegible] But We [illegible] have our times and seasons of being over-sensitive, when even our dear old mother herself would seem to bore us.

"I bore you," said a shabby gentleman to a young financier in the back room of a bank some years ago. "To confess the truth, you do," replied the young man, smartly. The old man got quietly out of his chair, folded up his patent, which he had been exhibiting, and politely took his grip-sack and himself off. That patent has now become worth its millions, and the smart young financier is now at work as a clerk in the office of the great company of which the old inventor is president. Had this financier been less nervous or sensitive he might not have so missed his fortune.

It is hardly safe to tell any decent man that he bores you. The result is stinging, and is rarely forgotten. In fact, I think patience to endure being bored, and not show your fret, is one of the happiest qualities of mind for successfully dealing with men.

Who is a bore? The man with a hobby. The tedious, uninteresting talker. The borrower. The fellow who boasts and tells about himself all the while. The friend who can't keep a good situation six months, and always comes round for new letters of introduction. The inveterate funny fellow, who can never talk sober sense. The homely woman who gets too near you when conversing on her long yarns. The dudish youth who makes a long, long call and sits in dumb silence expecting you to do all the entertaining. The man or woman who calls too often. The person who persecutes you with genuinely kind invitations to come and visit him, and will never take no for an answer. The fellow who is always on the contrary side, and fires up with: "Let us argue the point." The good soul who is always preaching to you "that smoking is killing you." The curious person who picks and peeps, that he or she may find out a secret that you do not wish to tell. The very, very smart man who always wants to teach you something. The visitor on whose face you see constantly written, "What shall we do next to amuse ourselves?" notwithstanding you have just jumped from one thing to another ever since he or she has been a guest in the house. The writer of lengthy letters full of platitudes, which keep you continually in his debt. The man with nothing to do, who drops in on you when you have every thing to do.

The list is capable of addition. Some persons would bore you who would not bore me. I am vexed by some whom you call "perfectly delightful." Taste has much to do with the matter, the hidden law of likes and dislikes. Hence I never allow myself to take another person's word for it; I'll wait and see if I am bored. Some men begin by boring you; but they end by endowing and blessing you. I know a certain college professor who is the most tedious person in the world for the first half day that you are in his company. But after that he seems to wake up; he lets you into his very soul. His company is the finest delight.

My experience is that they who talk most about bores are themselves even less careful about trying other people's patience than ordinary mortals who do not have so much to say on the subject. Good nature, sound health, a manly or womanly heart, full of sympathy for the rest of mankind, is not very often bored. We mortals are all here together on the footstool. Take us as we run, we are not so very different one from another. The earth is filling up and elbows are touching; square miles are being populated. We must help and be helped. We must learn to laugh at each other's foibles and find the jewel in every heart, for there certainly is one. It is going to be a worse world for the oversensitive soul who is only seeking his own comfort and wants nothing from the rest of us except what he can make contribute to his own happiness.

Even the most incorrigible bore can be advised. Try it. Tell him kindly that he is tiresome on certain lines. You are his friend. Get him right, and frankly set him right. You will be surprised to discover how often the bore is in perfect ignorance of his offense. If he is a genuine good fellow, you will see him blush with the shame of the information; it will be unspeakably painful to him; he can hardly believe you at first. But later on he will thank you fervently, and he will improve his manners, greatly to your own and his own social comfort and welfare. There are few of us, however, who are innocent enough ourselves to attempt this, unless we say: "Tell me, as I tell you."

FORREST'S LAST BILL.

A Lone Ten-Dollar Note That Proved a Mascot at Poker.

Speaking of General Forrest, the cavalry hero of the war, who killed more men with his saber than any other one soldier on either side, the Florida Times-Union says that he returned to Memphis after the surrender with his wife and with only a ten-dollar bill in his pocket. Mrs. Forrest was a lady of the most quiet, amiable Christian virtues, and the only person, by the way, who had any control of the "wizard of the saddle" while in a passion. One touch of her gentle hand, one soft, tender word, would calm his most tempestuous moods in a moment.

Sitting alone together the night of their return to Memphis, General Forrest said: "Mary, I know you are a strict church member and have always opposed cards. But this ten dollars is all there is on earth between us and the poor-house. Won't you consent to my going out to-night and hunting up a game of draw? And won't you pray that I may win while I am out?"

In vain the good woman protested. It was a sin in the sight of God, she said, and sin could not finally prosper. He went, found the party he wanted and began the game. The cards ran his way from the first and his winnings grew so large that he set his beaver on the floor beside him and used it as a depository. About two o'clock in the morning he lifted his tile, bent his head down and placed the hat carefully on it, retaining the money inside. Reaching his home he emptied his winnings into Mrs. Forrest's lap, saying: "Mary, count it." She found that he had upward of $1,500—a sum which gave him a good start in life after having lost all. "I believe," said he, relating the incident to some friends, "that Mary, in spite of her objections, really prayed for me while I was gone. At any rate I found her still sitting up when I got back, and know her prayers have many and many a time served me a good turn."

AN EGREGIOUS CHUMP.

How a Young Legal Luminary Killed His Father's Golden Calf.

Being told that in one of the Russian law courts there is a case which has been on the docket for more than four hundred years, says the Washington Post, we are reminded of the humiliating fact that our own beloved country is very young. Still we are proud to say that in the brief time of our Nation's existence we have succeeded in accumulating a large and choice assortment of cases which may not only show our excellent intentions but give evidence that in time we will have the most elaborate and costly collection of antique law cases in the civilized world. We believe we have no such chumpish lawyers as the one on whom the story is told in London. When he was a young man his father retired from practice, leaving the business to him. Within a week the young lawyer came home and proudly proclaimed:

"Well, father, I have done in three days what you couldn't do in all the years of your practice."

"What is that, my son?"

"I have settled that Noa estate case."

"Settled it, my son? Settled it, did you say?"

"Yes, father, I settled it in three days, and I could have done it in one if the judge had been at home."

"Young man," said the astounded parent, "you are an ass, a consummate ass. Why, sir, four generations of your ancestors have lived on that case and grown rich, and you and your children's children might have done the same if you had not been an egregious ass."

THE CRY OF MILLIONS

OH, MY BACK!

STOP IT NOW.

SOON IT WILL BE TOO LATE.

I have been troubled many years with disease of the kidneys and have tried many different remedies and have sought aid from different physicians without relief. About the 28th of April I was suffering from a very violent attack that almost prostrated me in such a manner that I was bent over. When I sat down it was almost impossible for me to get up alone, or to put on my clothes, when a friend, Providence sent Dr. Henley, with the OREGON KIDNEY TEA, to my hotel. I immediately commenced using the tea. It had an almost miraculous effect, and to the astonishment of all the guests at the hotel, in a few days I am happy to state, that I was a new man. I will recommend the tea to all afflicted as I have been.

A VESSEL HEAVING TO.

he Perils of a Storm on the Ocean—Laying Aloft in a Howling Breeze—How a Ship Weathers a Gale—Cutting Away the Masts.

The operations of "heaving to," per-rmed by nearly every sailing vessel ught on the coast during the recent orm, is never resorted to by merchant ssels until it becomes absolutely nec-ssary. The moment a vessel is "hove ," says the New York Times, she be-omes practically stationary, the object eing merely to keep her "head to the as." Among the many vessels caught itside during the gale was every type craft known to "deep-water voy-ges." There were East India clip-ers, West India brigs, barks, barken-nes and schooners, and a few steamers. Many of the East India packets had en out over one hundred and twenty ays. For many days prior to the orm the sky had been overcast. Only ccasionally would the sun appear, and en for so short a time as to render ven a catch "sight" well nigh out of e question. In consequence many ips had been running by "dead reck-ning," making the supposed position of e vessel a most uncertain one.

Under such conditions were vessels vertaken by the terrible northeaster. Vind and sea aided each other in mak-g navigation perilous, the seas threat-ning at every moment to roll over on e decks of the fleeing vessels. Some raft, perhaps better able to stand the as, held on, steering on a supposed ue course for port. In laying off this ourse the base has been taken from a upposed true position of the ship. In-ead of sighting the entrance the look-ut is heard calling: "Breakers ahead!" o one unacquainted with a seafaring fe the horror which accompanies such sound beggars description. Let it be ight time and the horror is increased. here is but one thing to do, and at quickly—to call: "All hands save hip!"

The vessel is on a lee shore, the gale blowing her right on, and unless she an be made to beat up in the wind, ead off and clear the coast, she will each. Up comes every body with a ush, half-dressed, half-dazed, but fully live to the danger. The moment the amen reach the deck the cutting wind akes wide awake all hands.

"Hand down the helm! Let fly the ead-sheets, lee head and main, and eather cross-jack braces! Spanker heet!" As fast as the orders fly from he bridge the men jump to their stations. ound comes the great ship and up into he wind. The head sails flap with remendous force, threatening to fly out f the leach ropes with every roll. Now he spanker is being hauled a-weather. he feels it, and, as the stern flies off, er head comes right up into the mass f seething waters.

"Round in the lee head and main and eather cross-jack braces!" Already the en are at their places, and up come he weather yard arms into the wind he vessel is now broadside to the seas. t is a question of life and death hether she will stop. If she but con-inues to come up all well. A drag has een got over from forward. To it is ent a hawser leading through a quarter hock. The drag is well away from the hip. On to the hawser jump the crew. way they go with a crash. The drag awser is run right to the bows, and at he same time the bow comes up rapidly.

Not a moment too soon. A great sea he next instant lifts the ship high into he air. Had it caught her "broadside o" it would have plunged tons of green eas upon the decks. But the great raft's bow has met it. She rose as the ave advanced and plunged heavily for-ard as it rushed under her.

Now is the time to catch her. Sharp p go the yards from the head and main. he head sheets are hauled well aft, he helm carefully tended; the spanker ased up slightly; the ship feels the anvas, small as the amount on her is; he reaches forward, staggers for a mo-ent, then slowly works her way off hrough sea after sea. As soon as she s far enough out to sea the vessel is rought up into the wind, off comes the oretopmast staysail, foresail, foretop-ail and spanker. A close-reefed main-opsail and main spencer alone hold her p, and all attempt to fall off is coun-eracted by the position of the rudder.

Should the wind still continue to in-rease in violence the topsail will be oose-winged. This latter sail is kept n as long as possible because of its be-ng above the waves. Under a main pencer alone the ship has but little op-ortunity to feel the wind, the waves erving as a bulwark. Should, however, goose-winged topsail and main spen-er prove too much, tarpaulins placed n the lee mizzen rigging may hold her p.

If she still continues to heel over the rew will cut away the foremast by cut-ing the weather laniards. If this will ot right her away will go the mizzen nd main, and then trust to riding out o a sea anchor. This alone can save the essel. Let her once fall off, get into he trough of the sea, and the conse-uences will be expressed in the one word of the seaman, "Foundered."

Where the Profits Go.

A New York burglar stole a diamond breastpin worth $700 and a sealskin dol-man worth $600, and all the money he got from the "fence" who bought the goods was $130. The burglar added that he once stole eleven gold watches, each valued by the jeweler at $250, and all he got for the lot was $325. He had to take this or run his own risks. The profit is not in the stealing, but in the "fencing."

GRANT'S HORSEMANSHIP.

An Incident That Occurred After the Battle of Port Hudson.

"Speaking of General Grant's fine horsemanship," said General N. P. Banks to a New York Tribune reporter, "reminds me of an incident that occurred soon after the battle of Port Hudson, in which he gave me the race of my life. General Grant paid the army under my command a visit at the period mentioned and was asked to review it. He brought with him no horses, and I loaned him for the occasion the magnificent bay parade horse which the patriotic citizens of Massachusetts presented to me when I went to the front in 1862. All of my old soldiers will remember that bay horse. I rode on the review a thoroughbred black mare, and I was in a constant state of anxiety lest she would run away with me when warmed up. Well, the troops were drawn up in line and we rode down the front lines at a slow pace, but when we reached the rear lines Grant would put the bay at his utmost speed, and as he was nearly thoroughbred he could run. Grant sat on the bay as if he was part of him, but the difficulty I found myself in was not to keep up at the regulation distance, but to prevent my animal from distancing the General and running off with me. Grant rode like a demon and I after him until the review was finished, the troops in the meantime watching the scene with interest mingled with astonishment. For some days afterward the troops were heard discussing the event and, as far as I can learn, never settled the question as to whether it was a horse-race or a military review."

"While on the subject of horses," continued the General, "the two animals that I took with me into the field at the outbreak of the civil war survived all of the campaigns in which I was engaged. When I returned to civil pursuits I took my horses back to Massachusetts with me and kept the faithful animals until they died. The bay horse which I have mentioned I rarely used except on parade or in an emergency. He was too valuable to risk his life on the field of battle. I usually rode another bay in battle, a big, powerful and zealous animal. He was wounded on several occasions, but none of the wounds seemed to be serious enough to incapacitate him for active service. I rode him at the battle of Cedar Mountain."

CHILDREN OF THE SUN.

Their Four Great Roads Which Lead to and from the Capital.

All the Incas were trained in the most Spartan-like manner for the field of battle, each one being in the army from the time he was sixteen years old until he had arrived at the age of seventy.

When he had completed his military education at the capital an army was called together and he was placed at its head to gain his first victory or suffer his first defeat. If victorious he was at once accounted a great warrior, but if defeated the people placed little confidence in him.

It did not take long to collect an army, as the Incas had four great roads leading out from their capital over which the King's orders were dispatched with great rapidity, sometimes over one hundred and fifty miles a day being covered by the couriers.

These roads were paved with flagstones and were from twelve to fifty feet in width. The road from Cuzco to Quito was the most remarkable one ever constructed.

It was channeled from the crests of the mountainous passes, cut through solid rocks, ravines and precipices, with solid masonry and sometimes suspension bridges, maguey and osier woods. This road was about one thousand five hundred miles in length.

The other long road led to the south, then west to the capital, to the ocean, and from thence north along the west to Quito, over the now arid sand-hills and deserts.

Nearly the whole length of the road was protected by a high wall in places; gardens lined the side of the road, whose luscious perfumes refreshed the weary soldier or messenger as he hastened along to do the King's bidding.

Along these grand highways, about a league apart, were placed small post houses which sheltered the messenger who was to travel to the next post as quick as he could, and so on until the message had reached its destination.

In the same manner delicious fruits, flesh, fish, etc., were placed at the King's disposal, which came from the remotest parts of the kingdom. Also at intervals were large granaries and store-houses, filled with food and clothing for the soldiers, so that they should not suffer with the change of temperature or elevation of their journeyings.

A Quiet Send-Off.

Don't Have Cold Feet, It is Dangerous!

Writers, book-keepers, and men of sedentary habits, as well as delicate women, often feel chilly in summer, and in autumn and winter are troubled with cold feet in the office, study and home. It should be known to all that mental exercise exhausts the bodily heat, and therefore brings on a cold feeling in the feet which is not conducive to health. People of sedentary habits should never sit for any length of time without foot warmers or warm fur lined slippers or shoes. It is however, best to get rid of this dangerous trouble.

The trouble is frequently the result of impoverished blood, and a sluggish circulation. Persons suffering from dyspepsia and indigestion are sure subjects for cold feet. The rheumatic, and those suffering from general debility, and all troubled with kidney and liver complaints, soon begin to experience the discomfort of having cold feet.

We have known many persons troubled with the above named ailments, and with cold feet, who have expended large sums of money for physicians services without any good results. There is, however, one well known remedy which can be strongly recommended, and which in the past has proved eminently successful; it is Paine's Celery Compound; it is not simply a tonic or ordinary medicine, but a well known scientific preparation which thoroughly regulates the action of the bowels and all internal organs, gives a vigorous and healthy circulation, and promotes a perfect digestion. It allays and calms all nervous feelings and fits man and woman to enjoy healthful repose and sleep.

Once this desired state is secured, you may safely rest assured that "cold feet" will be a thing of the past as far as you are concerned. Foot warmers and expensive fur lined shoes will not necessarily be required; because nature's building up will give the body sufficient caloric to keep you comfortable and healthy. We would urge upon all the advisability, and great necessity of trying the wonderful effect which one bottle of Paine's Celery Compound will have during the cold season.

WILL PARNELL RETIRE?

The Press Generally Thinks He Must—The Nationalists Faithful to Him.

LONDON, Nov. 18—[New York Herald Cable.]—The press of Great Britain and Ireland is still discussing the Parnell case. With the exception of the Irish Nationals papers the general verdict is that Parnell must retire. Many papers agree with the Pall Mall Gazette that that he must also marry Mrs. O'Shea. The Pall Mall Gazette says it may be taken for granted that neither the Irish parliamentary party nor the Irish people, rightly or wrongly, will press Parnell's retirement. It adds:

But this fact does not for a moment relieve Parnell from his duty. On the contrary, it gives him an opportunity which we live in hope he will seize, of doing an act of reparation. It is Parnell's clear duty to send his resignation to his constituents. This is a duty which he owes alike to the Irish people, to his English allies, to his character and cause. Now that he has confessed his guilt he should have the courage of it and resign.

The Evening News says: "Ireland's uncrowned king has been crowned with infamy."

The Star (T. P. O'Connor's paper) says: Parnell does not intend to resign the leadership of the Irish parliamentary party. He wrote with his own hand the summons issued Saturday to his followers, calling upon them to be present at the opening of the House of Commons. He maintains an imperturbable temper and even spirits, and has talked with his friends upon matters indifferent or trifling, but he has made no allusion to the trial. He is certain to appear in the House of Commons when that body opens November 25th. Home rule is a compact between nations, not persons, and it will stand.

The Dublin Freeman's Journal, commenting upon the outcome of the O'Shea divorce case and the predictions made concerning its effect upon Parnell's future, recalls the private lives of the Duke of Wellington, Nelson, Lord Palmerston, and a number of other prominent persons, who, is said, in their time, were subject to scandals similar to that in which Parnell is now involved. The Journal says:

The gabble about the social ostracism to which Parnell will be subjected is absurd, because he never went into society. The pastors charged with his moral well being are not pastors of the majority of the Irish people. It is neither our duty nor province to adjudge his private life nor examine his conscience. Ireland's business with him is entirely of a political nature. He has ably, faithfully and successfully served the country and brought her out of bondage, and led her to within sight of the promised land. The juncture now has been reached where there can be no swapping or changing leaders. We would not change if we could, and we could not if we would. The Irish, not the English people will decide if toil of the nation for years is to be lost, or the fruit of that toil risked because man has been weak and a woman frail. It is imperative that Parnell continue the leader of the Irish parliamentary party, and it is necessary that this be proclaimed at the meeting of the National League to be held to-day and at the public meeting to be held Thursday.

The Express says:

It would be wise for Parnell to retire to private life, but we can hardly expect him to show so much self-respect as this course would evince.

DUBLIN, Nov. 18.—A meeting of the National League was held in this city to-day. Edmund Leamy presided. He said Parnell had been the chosen leader of the party and that the party would stand by him while he stood by them. He would lead the party in combat in parliament during the coming session, and the Irish would be more than ever devoted to him.

John Redmond ridiculed the idea of Parnell being prejudiced in politics by the verdict in the O'Shea case. His colleagues were bound by unfailing loyalty. Never in the career of the Nationalists were the members of the party more determined to stand by Parnell. Redmond's remarks were greeted with cheers. Joseph Kenney and other leaders spoke in a similar strain.

There was a large attendance of Irish members of parliament, all of whom agreed that Parnell should retain the leadership of the Nationalist party. The meeting closed with cheers for him.

A rumor is current that Parnell will retire from active politics and marry Mrs. O'Shea. He has promised to give continuous advice to his successor in the leadership of the Nationalist party. It is an undeniable fact that the virulence against Parnell displayed by the Tory papers editorially is causing a reaction of public sentiment in his favor.

Notice has been given in the town council that a motion will be made to remove Parnell's name from the roll of burgesses. The council received the notice of the motion in silence.

FOR REVENUE ONLY.

The Westminster Truth, which is a Government supporter "for revenue only," is of the opinion that a member of the cabinet has a perfect right to devote as much time as he wishes to his private business, to the neglect of his public duties. These are not the words used by the writer in the editorial columns of our contemporary, but the meaning is the same. The Truth thinks that the Attorney-General can appear in the courts of the Province, as counsel for private litigants, whenever and wherever it suits his pocket, and that he may be still considered a faithful, painstaking and devoted head of the law department of the Government. According to Truth's idea, Mr. DAVIE may bully witnesses in the police court, prosecute in the county court, plead for criminals in the Supreme Court, conduct civil cases in Westminster, and withal be an efficient administrator of a most important department. The mistake that Truth makes is that it judges an Attorney General by its own standard. On the principal that Mr. DAVIE accepted the Attorney-Generalship "for revenue only," the Truth is consistent, if not right, in seconding his efforts to make all the money possible in private practice while drawing a salary for public services.

SIR HENRY TYLER AND M'KINLEYISM.

Sir HENRY TYLER has been interviewed by the London, England, Financial Times on the "Canadian outlook," anent the MCKINLEY tariff. Sir HENRY is reported as saying that so far as the MCKINLEY bill affects Canada, it cuts both ways. On the one side it is good for the lumber trade. There are special kinds of timber grown on the Canadian side which the Americans need, and other kinds grown in the States which the Canadians need. Large quantities of American timber are sawn on the Canadian side and sent back again into the States. It was absurd from the American standpoint ever to hamper such a trade by duties, and one of the few sane features in the MCKINLEY tariff is its putting lumber on the free list. This alone will compensate the railways for nearly all they are likely to lose by the new duties. To the Grand Trunk especially it will be a valuable boon, as some of its best feeders are in the lumber regions. It has no better or more progressive traffic just now than the lumber business on the old Northern of Canada extension, which runs through vast forests of maple, hemlock, white oak, and other Canadian woods, for which there is an insatiable demand both in the States and abroad.

But that which Sir HENRY descants upon the most eloquently is the coal trade. "If," says he, "the MCKINLEY bill had only done as much for coal as it has for lumber, Canada would have had little reason to reproach its authors." The natural course of exchange, he points out, would be for New England to use Nova Scotia coal, which it can get cheaper than Pennsylvania, and for Canadians to use Pennsylvania, which at all western points they can buy under the price of the Nova Scotian.

"But the Americans, in the interest of Pennsylvania coal producers, put on a coal duty of seventy cents per ton, and the Canadians retorted with a duty of sixty cents per ton. This did Pennsylvania no harm, as at all points west of Montreal the Canadians had still to buy Pennsylvania coal, only paying sixty cents per ton more for it than they had done formerly. It was much harder on the Nova Scotian collieries, which lost most of its New England market. There is an opportunity here for an experiment in the Great Republican game of reciprocity, and before Sir HENRY TYLER left Canada he heard that feelers had been thrown out between Ottawa and Washington for a free interchange of coal. We allude to these two features of Sir HENRY'S interview because they are features which concern British Columbia in the consideration of commercial relations with the States. British Columbia would immensely benefit from reciprocity in coal and lumber, and we fancy that American consumers would not less benefit.

THE PRESIDENTIAL "DARK HORSE."

The presidential candidate "dark horse" in the United States is the bane of political prophets. In the case of this equine, coming events do not cast their shadows before. The political firmament gives no sign of his appearance. He is to all intents and purposes the offspring of Availability, sired by Expediency, and a "catch colt" at that. No prudent man will back a presidential prognostic with hard cash. But for all the uncertainty attendant of the birth of a presidential candidate, the temptation to speculate over whom he will be is irresistible. The student of contemporary events cannot help prophesying if he would. And so it is in the United States. Now that the clouds of the recent election have rolled by, men think or seem to think that they see with a clearer vision and already the Republicans flatter themselves that they are not damaged past recovery, and that the signs portend a Republican victory two years hence, under the leadership of BLAINE. Nor does this forecast seem so very absurd. The Republicans are as strong numerically as ever they were, and under the leadership of BLAINE, whose tariff policy is in no sense objectionable to either free traders or protectionists they present an element of strength, which, leaving out adventitious circumstances favorable to the Democrats, render victory by no means improbable. Protectionists and free traders of the reasonable sort find common ground in reciprocity, and BLAINE, if not the originator of the idea, stands now the great exemplar of it. It is not in the nature of things, that in the case of so vast a country as the United States, there should be unanimity upon fiscal questions. It is unqualifiedly true of the States that neither Protection nor Free Trade can be made to operate with uniform advantage to the whole country. A compromise course, therefore, has to be adopted, and in reciprocity we have the best expression of it. BLAINE has made reciprocity the key note of his policy; it has been indorsed in the recent Republican defeat, and unless something transpires which cannot at this juncture be even guessed, BLAINE undoubtedly two years hence will be the Republican nominee for President. The weakness of CLEVELAND lies in the fact that he is a free trader per se, whereas all Democrats are not. Divided on the question among themselves, the Pacific coast strongly Republican, with no State north of MASON and DIXON'S line absolutely sure for them, and saddled with the parochial school question, CLEVELAND has to trim his sails to too many contrary breezes. With the Republicans united on some definite fiscal policy, whether it be good or bad, the chances of success are largely in their favor. It is the misfortune of the Democracy to be saddled with the worst element in the United States. The Republicans are bad enough in this respect, but the Democrats are worse. Outside of the Southern States the strength of the Democrats lies in the worst elements of the large cities, whereof we have a striking manifestation in the wretched municipal government of New York. But though the Republicans may win two years hence, it does not follow that their candidate will be BLAINE. Here is where the "dark horse" business comes in. It may be deemed expedient to bring out another man. Republican managers may deem it inexpedient that BLAINE should be the standard bearer of his own policy. Reciprocity instead of free trade, we imagine, will be the war-cry of the Republicans, and although BLAINE as the originator of it is entitled to lead, he may be shunted for a man who has fewer political animosities to overcome. If the conclusion be reached that he cannot carry certain states, the "dark horse" will be trotted out. This nondescript steed will become the Republican standard bearer. Such is American Presidential politics. The sine qua non of a presidential candidate is unobjectionability with all the states, and particularly with those denominated "doubtful."

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The Westminster Truth makes a comparison of the Attorney-General of British Columbia to the Attorney-General of England. JOE RYMAL one time in the House of Commons, in showing the difference between two well-known lawyer politicians, spoke of one as a singed cat and of the other as a Royal Bengal tiger. The Truth can make the application.

The Hon. EDGAR DEWDNEY, with his accustomed facileness has again "put his foot in it," which we are happy to observe, the Colonist is honest enough to acknowledge. Does this betoken a new departure in the Colonist or is it simply a case which our contemporary found impossible to condone with the usual application of cusuistical whitewash? If the former, the Colonist should vent a few disinterested criticisms relative to its own political environment. With the fine large field it has before it in this respect, our contemporary need not prowl through its exchanges for editorial inspiration. The mistakes of Robsonism would fill a volume.

Few persons will undertake to extenuate, much less defend, PARNELL'S offence against morals and against society. The violence, however, with which the Tory press is casting the first stone will strike some people as slightly hypercritical, if not hypocritical. PARNELL'S case is not without precedents, and, strange as it may appear, most of them are furnished by men whom the Tories love to honor. Without mentioning royalty, we have the private lives of the DUKE OF WELLINGTON, Lord NELSON, Lord PALMERSTON and other prominent personages. Morality, as touching political unfitness, is about the last thing the Tory press should discuss. With the Tories the crime of immorality is in getting caught, or in not belonging to the aristocracy. Nevertheless, the Irish party can get along without PARNELL. He is not so inseperable from Home Rule that the Irish must take him with all his sins. For the Tories, however, to be hypercritical in the matter is to provoke a smile.

MISUNDERSTOOD.

TO THE EDITOR:—Will you kindly give me the space to correct a wrong impression. I regret that the City Council understood that I claimed $25 damages from the corporation. I merely mentioned to Alderman Holland the fact that my fence had been broken by the boys, and when he saw it, Mr. Holland said a policeman would be sent to the parents of the boys, and that I should name the damage.

ABOUT SYPHONS.

TO THE EDITOR:—I notice in your last issue a description of a syphon which is being used to empty the water from a pit on the high ground in Victoria, and the article goes on to say that the gentleman who is engineering the work does not intend to take out a patent, thus giving the impression that he is the inventor. Now, I remember seeing a syphon at work twenty years ago, and the idea must have been old even then, for it attracted nothing more than a passing notice from those who saw it. I refer to a pipe which was in use at the iron mines at Playfair, near Perth, Ontario. No air pump was used there, however; the current being started by simply filling the pipe with water, which was done by means of hand buckets, both ends of the pipe being plugged and the water poured in at the highest point of the pipe. This hole was then sealed up, and a shot from a gun was the signal for both plugs to be drawn when the flow was continual so long as the supply lasted, the water being carried for a distance of about a quarter of a mile.

NEW BUILDINGS.

Block at Government and Yates Streets—Residence for Mr. Jos. Loewen.

In the course of a day or so Mr. Teague will call for tenders for the new building to be erected at Salmon's corner, and to which reference has already been made in the TIMES. The plans are now completed and as soon as the specifications are drawn up the tenders for construction will be called for. It will be a three story structure, treated broadly and generously in the way of decoration, but in no precise style. There is to be a large basement floored in concrete, extending throughout the building, 34x20 feet. Two stores will comprise the ground floor, both entered from the corner. The upper floor will be divided into two large rooms which may afterwards be fitted up or subdivided according to the requirements of the occupants. The stores below will be fitted with large plate glass windows, the upper parts of which will be treated artistically with colored glass and lead work.

A glance at the plans which have been prepared by Mr. Teague for Mr. Joseph Loewen's new residence on the Gorge road show the representation of a building which will be typical of Victoria's homes. It is to have a handsome, imposing exterior, treated in broad Elizabethan style carried out on substantial lines. The interior, for serviceable apartments, comfort and artistic finish, will compare with anything at present in Victoria. Everything almost that an expert or experienced mind can suggest or devise has been done to make this a home. The ground floor, fully and completely arranged, is so finished that the parlor, drawing room, dining room and main hall can be thrown open and offer one uninterrupted promenade at times of reception or ball. The decorations of this portion of the house will be rich and artistically handsome. The drawing room and parlor are connected by a large open arch of carved work. Between the two rooms is a spacious bay window, and in the parlor is a large octagon tower window. Verandahs will be provided to the two sides of the house.

The upper floor will contain seven bedrooms and all necessary appointments for sanitary purposes.

Change of Proprietors.

The Ship Inn, on Wharf street, has been purchased by Messrs. James Brown and Hugh Griffiths, well known in Victoria, from Mr. J. Meldram. Mr. Brown is so well known in our city as a first-class bartender that it only need be said of the new firm that they will keep the best brands of liquors and cigars to be found on the Island. Courteous treatment should merit a fair share of patronage. nov18-1w

Obituary.

Mrs. E. B. Carmichael has received information of the death of her sister, Miss Dougall of Chicago, who died on Thursday last.

Mrs. Irwin, wife of Rev. Mr. Irwin of Westminster, and daughter of Mr. J. H. Innes of the naval dockyard, died at the Royal City yesterday morning after a short illness. She was dangerously ill on Sunday, but rallied, and was improving steadily when death overtook her. The deceased was well known both in Westminster and Victoria, and her death is mourned by a host of friends. The funeral will take place to-morrow.

OUR OTTAWA LETTER.

THE VISIT OF MESSRS. DILLON AND O'BRIEN.

Will They be Arrested if They Come to Canada?—Hon. Oliver Mowat Thinks No Warrant Will be Sent for Their Arrest—His Letter on the Subject.

[From Our Own Correspondent.]

OTTAWA, Nov. 12.—United Canada, the Catholic journal of Eastern Ontario, published last week interviews with Sir John Macdonald and Sir John Thompson, relative to the visit of Messrs. Dillon and O'Brien to Canada, and their liability to be arrested on their arrival here. To-morrow this newspaper will publish a letter from Hon. Oliver Mowat on the same question. I wired the TIMES a synopsis of this letter, but its full context will be of interest not only to legal men but the public generally, and therefore I give it. It is as follows:

Toronto, Nov. 5, 1890.

My Dear Mr. Grace—I have your letter of the 31st. I think it extremely unlikely that any warrant will be sent from England for the arrest of Messrs. Dillon and O'Brien, as no one suspects that their absence is more than temporary, or for more than a very few months, perhaps weeks. The Act regulating the matter appears to be Fugitive Offenders Act, 1881, Imp. 44 and 45 Vict., c 69, and the spirit of the 10th section would seem to imply: "Where it is made to appear to a Superior Court that by reason of the trivial nature of the case, or by reason of the application for the return of a fugitive not being made in good faith in the interests of justice or otherwise, it would, having regard to the distance, to the facilities for communication, and to all the circumstances of the case, be unjust or oppressive or too severe a punishment to return the fugitive either at all or until the expiration of a certain period, such court may discharge the fugitive either absolutely or on bail, or order that he shall not be returned until after the expiration of the period named in the order, or may make such other in the premises as to the court seems just."

By the 9th section, the Act is made to apply to any offence punishable by imprisonment with hard labor for a term of 12 months or more, or by any greater punishment; and the second section provides that when a person accused of having committed such an offence "in any part of Her Majesty's Dominions has left that part such person (in this Act referred to as a fugitive from that part) if found in another part of Her Majesty's Dominion, shall be liable to be apprehended and returned in manner provided by this Act to the part from which he is a fugitive. A fugitive may be so apprehended under an endorsed warrant or a provisional warrant."

The third section provides that the warrant is to be endorsed by the judge of a superior court where the fugitive is found, or in the case of a British possession, and the warrant so endorsed is "sufficient authority to apprehend the fugitive in the part of Her Majesty's dominions in which it is endorsed, and bring him before a magistrate." The magistrate thereupon issues a provisional warrant for the apprehension of the fugitive, and in case he is apprehended the Governor may if he think fit discharge "the person apprehended under such warrant," or may order the fugitive to be sent to that part of Her Majesty's dominions in which the offence was committed.

In the case of Canada there would be a question whether the "Governor" referred to is the Governor-General of the Dominion, or the Lieut-Governor, the Canadian Lieut-Governors being appointed by the Governor General, and not under the Great Seal of the United Kingdom, and the Dominion Parliament, having exclusive jurisdiction in respect of Criminal Law including the procedure in criminal matters. Yours truly,

O. MOWAT.

John D. Grace, Esq. United Canada.

Sir John Macdonald in his interview held that it was the Provincial government that had to do with such a matter. This is the old story. When anything disagreeable arises the Dominion Premier is always ready to evade responsibility, but if the provinces should legislate in a manner not palatable to Sir John Macdonald or his party, then the veto power is brought into use, and such legislation disallowed on the ground of encroachment on the Federal authority. Both parties will likely be spared the disagreeable work of arresting either Dillon or O'Brien.

SLABTOWN.

Deepest Lake in the World.

By far the deepest lake known in the world is Lake Baikal, in Siberia, which is every way comparable to the great Canadian lakes as regards size; for, while its area is over 9000 square miles, making it about equal to Erie in superficial extent, its enormous depth of between 4000 and 4500 feet makes the volume of its waters almost equal to that of Lake Superior. Although its surface is 1350 feet above the sea level, its bottom is nearly 3000 feet below it. The Caspian lake, or sea, as it is usually called, has a depth in its southern basin of over 3000 feet. Lake Maggiore is 3000 feet deep, Lake Como nearly 2000 feet deep, and Lego-di-Garda, another Italian lake, has a depth in certain places of 1900 feet. Lake Constance is over 1000 feet deep, and Huron and Michigan reach depths of 900 and 1000 feet.

Oh, this ringing in the ears!
Oh, this humming in the head!
Hawking, blowing, snuffing, gasping,
Watering eyes and throat a-rasping,
Health impaired and comfort fled,
Till I would that I were dead!

What folly to suffer so with catarrhal troubles when the worst cases of chronic catarrh in the head are relieved and cured by the mild, cleansing and healing properties of Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy. It purifies the foul breath, by removing the cause of offence, heals the sore and inflamed passages, and perfects a lasting cure.

When Baby was sick, we gave her Castoria.
When she was a Child, she cried for Castoria.
When she became Miss, she clung to Castoria.
When she had Children, she gave them Castoria.

INTERVIEWING THE COUNCIL.

City Traders Complain of the Injustice Done by the Itinerent Auctioneer.

Incidental with the advent of Christmas is the itinerent auctioneer, whose principal articles of trade are fancy goods and jewelry of a certain class. He packs his grip and tours the country, locating himself in an unoccupied store in one town after the other, staying just long enough to do a great deal of injury to the local trade and then flys off to other pastures. The people are caught by the glamor of his speech, the flare of his gas lights and the false glitter of his questionable jewelry. He makes a great noise over the "extraordinary bargains" he gives, and solemnly assures the people that such an opportunity will occur but once in a life time and it is now imperatively necessary that they should take immediate advantage of it.

Thus they get the public ear, and before the glitter of the flaming gas jets have died out, the unfortunate purchaser finds himself in possession of a worthless article of jewelry, a ring with an inferior stone perhaps flawed, a trumpery watch, or some other article which soon loses its gloss away from the light. Then the people wake up and perceive that they have been duped into paying perhaps twice the sum for a fraud that they would have had to pay for the genuine article at their local dealers.

The itinerent auctioneer recently made his appearance in the Mainland cities, and after leaving the usual trail behind him, has reached Victoria. Citizens to some extent have already been bitten in the usual way. This is to let two or three fairly good articles, kept for a bait, go at a reasonable figure. People who get these speak of the "bargains" to their friends, and so the seed is sown. The local traders, who are the backbone and support of the city, have tided over the dull season, have employed labor, paid taxes, rates and rents, and just as the prospect of a compensating Christmas or holiday trade dawns on the commercial horizon, this cloud of the despoilers, like locusts, looms up and ruins legitimate business for the season.

The businesses most affected are fancy goods dealers and jewelers. These classes of goods are easily transported from one place to another, and are the kind most suitable to this season of the year. Victoria merchants both see and feel the injustice to which they are subjected, and are aware that unless something is done in the way of protection, it would be just as well for them to close their stores. Accordingly an influential deputation of business men, numbering about thirty, waited on the Mayor and Council last evening with a view to ascertaining whether the powers of the Municipal Act would not enable the Council to pass such prohibitory laws as would afford protection to the local traders and bar out these men who come here with their inferior and yet dearer class of goods. Such men light on us, said the spokesman of the deputation, and take away a great deal of money out of the city. Of course it is largely their own fault if people are duped into purchasing such goods, but still it is in their interest to keep the money as much as possible in the city unless an equivalent is received for it. If it were some of our own people who practice this mode of trading, the injury would not be so great to the local trader, because the money would be kept in the city. These itinerent men pay fifty dollars for the privilege of doing $20,000 or $30,000 worth of business; the city trader pays a license, rent rates, taxes, wages and living expenses.

The council expressed it willingness to do everything possible to remedy the evil for the present, and at the coming session would bring it before the legislature with a view to inducing that body to enact such protective laws as are necessary for the interests of local men.

The deputation then withdrew.

SUPREME COURT.
(Before Mr. Justice Drake.)

C. P. N. Co. vs. Vancouver City.—This was an action brought by the C. P. N. Co., against the corporation of Vancouver to recover $40,000 alleged damages for not allowing the Premier's passengers to land at that port after she had been released from quarantine at Victoria by the late Dr. Jackson, the medical men thinking that four days' quarantine insufficient. The Islander afterwards took up the Premier's passengers, but she also was prevented from landing them. Mr. Justice Drake gave judgment for the plaintiffs, C. P. N., by consent, for $1. Both parties to pay their own costs.

The case of the Crown vs. E. Howe, for an infraction of the Wide Tire Act, was brought on appeal before the Chief Justice to-day, who sustained the previous decision, holding that the act is constitutional, and imposing a fine of $10 and costs for each offence.

De Cosmos vs. the corporation of Victoria—Motion by the plaintiff for judgment upon certain admissions in the pleadings. Three days were given the plaintiff to amend statement of claim, and the defendant three additional days wherein to amend their statement of defense.

THEY GOT THE SCENT.

How an Oshkosh (Wis.) Miser Rewarded the Good Little Boys.

There is a miserly old lady living in Oshkosh, says the Times of that city, who, it is believed, judging from circumstances, has chests and chests of gold secreted in her house somewhere. She is so penurious and hates to part with her money so bad, that when she is compelled from absolute necessity to buy the necessaries of life she walks to the store farthest from her house so that she can keep in her possession the money that must be spent for food a little longer, and pays for her purchase with more reluctance than Isaac of York could command while parting with his gold.

It is told of this old lady that one day, while counting over some money, a five-cent piece dropped in a big wood-box filled with wood, shavings, etc. She searched for an hour in vain, and was almost distracted by the loss, when a bright thought struck her. She would have a couple of little boys, who were playing near the house, seek it. Accordingly she called them in and told them that if they would find the money which had dropped in the wood-box she would give them each a cent. The youngsters, eager to earn the price of a stick of candy, went willingly to work, and after hunting for about two hours gave a howl of delight when they discovered the missing coin.

The old woman eagerly snatched it from them and, after carefully depositing it in her pocket-book, called them dear little children and said they well earned their reward. She then went into another room, brought out a bottle that had once been filled with perfume, and gave each one of the boys a scent of the lingering odor, after which she called them dear little darlings again and told them to run away now and play. The little fellows were so overwhelmed with gratitude at the old lady's munificence that they kindly thanked her in their abstraction.

A Numerous Family.

There are some good-sized families in Maine to-day, but probably none so large as one mentioned in the histories of old colonial days. It is told on the authority of Cotton Mather that the first royal Governor of Boston was one of a family of twenty-six children, and was born in the woods of Maine near the mouth of the Kennebec in 1651. His mother was left a widow when he was a child, and is said to have had all she could do to provide for the wants of her family. It is hoped that when the Governor got $100,000, a knighthood and a goblet valued at $5,000 as a reward for finding a Spanish treasure-ship that had gone to the bottom half a century before, he remembered his mother and made her last days easier than her earlier ones had been.

A Curious Calculation.

Justice, a London paper, has been giving the results of some curious calculations, which, if correct, will make a fellow a little cautious about guessing on the size of a crowd and offering to bet his last dollar that he is right. According to the calculator on the staff of Justice, all the people in the world, about 1,400,000,000, could stand in a field ten miles square, and, by the aid of telephones, could be addressed by a single speaker.

New Use for Carrier Pigeons.

The carrier pigeon has just been turned to a new use in Russia, according to the Novoe Vremya. It is to convey negatives of photographs taken in a balloon. The first experiment was made from the cupola of the Cathedral of Isaac, and the subject photographed was the Winter Palace. The plates were packed in envelopes impenetrable to the light and then tied to the feet of the pigeons, who safely and quickly carried them to the station at Volkovo.

The Deadliest of Serpents.

The cobra destroys less life in the aggregate than the various forms of cholera, cholera morbus, cholera infantum, diarrhœa, dysentry, cramps, colic, etc. Mortality in Canada from these causes is light, owing to the general use of Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry, which is an unfailing specific for all bowel complaints.

LAST OPPORTUNITY.

Mr. Seward, the Eminent N. Y. Optician, Preparing to Leave for Home.

Having faithfully promised to be in New York by Christmas, and being obliged to stop for a few days at Portland, Denver, St. Louis, Cincinatti and Washington, Mr. Seward will leave Victoria

Thursday, December 4th.

The prospects are that Mr. Seward will not have time to finish all the work now in sight, before leaving, but if all those intending to call will do so without further delay, he will make the test and finish what he can and send the balance from New York.

Mr. Seward's success has been complete. Hundreds of Victorians have been benefited by his superior skill in adapting glasses, and no failures have been reported.

Mr. Seward's services are in great demand wherever he goes, and it will probably be several years before he will reach this coast again.

Dr. McNaughton Jones, Dr. Milne Dr. Garrow, Postmaster N. Shakespeare, Collector A. R. Milne and hundreds of others now wearing Mr. Seward's glasses speak of the work in the highest terms.

A record of the test and degree of the glasses given in each case is kept on the books for future reference, so that in case of accident, any person can have their glasses duplicated by addressing F. D. Seward, Box 3,567 New York.

Oft in Peril.

Lives of children are oft endangered by sudden and violent attacks of cholera, cholera morbus, diarrhœa, dysentery and bowel complaints. A reasonable and certain precaution is to keep Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry always at hand.

THE CARIBOO STAGE ROBBER.

Capture of the Supposed Highwayman—How it Was Done.

It will be remembered that last summer a robbery was committed on the Cariboo stage, while it was on its way from Barkerville to Ashcroft. Posses of officers were sent out after the robber or robbers, but until lately no trace of them, or him, could be found. A reward of $5000 was offered by the Government and stage company for the arrest of the culprits, and now by the exertions of Mr. Fred Sones of Lillooet, and Mr. F. W. Foster, J.P., a man named M. V. B. Rowland has been arrested on suspicion, a carefully followed chain of evidence having led up to the arrest.

The manner in which suspicion came to point to Rowland, and the evidence to be adduced against him, as narrated by Mr. Foster, is somewhat as follows: Rowland had gone to live in Barkerville in the spring but had not succeeded very well. Early in July he was known to have less than $20. On July 3rd he went to the store of Mr. Joseph Mason, M.P.P., and pledged his pistol and gold ring for provisions, but he did not get more than would do him for two or three weeks. On July 4th he left, presumably for the Horse Fly country. In the story the prisoner now tells, he accounts for the manner in which he spent all the time, except the three weeks following his departure from Barkerville. During that time he says he was prospecting in the Horse Fly district. When next heard of he was working on the Creek, a few miles below Clinton, and employing a white man and an Indian to help him in sluicing. This was on the Scottish creek, where he worked nine days. He claims to have made between $1100 and $1200 during that time. He had in his possession 50½ ounces of gold amalgam which he had delivered to the express to forward. He had about $150 worth of amalgam on his person when arrested, besides some loose gold in small nuggets. Upon examination it was found that the amalgam he had was composed of four or five different qualities, a suspicious circumstance, as a working of perhaps five or seven feet in width never gives more than one quality, it carries the same all the way through. Of one variety he had about $800 worth. A portion of the amalgam was in small parts, looking like so many day's work done up separately. One day a man named Wells came across Rowland while working on Scottish creek, and had a conversation with him which excited his suspicion. Rowland's pony was very poor, a fact which he explained by saying the animal had been neglected lately. Besides this Wells noticed a straight scar across the animal's back, like a cut. This Rowland explained by saying it was scratched by passing under the limb of the tree, but the appearance of the marks shows that it may have been made by the sharp edge of the iron safe. The prisoner had taken a very prudent plan of managing to get his boodle out of the country. Towards the end of the season his big haul would not be surprisingly large, and would not excite suspicion. It is true the country is open and little traveled, so that he could have gone a long way without being seen, but the difficulty of procuring supplies stood in his way. If the foregoing suspicions are correct, he had evidently intended to wait till the wash-up season had passed, and then disappear by the regular means of travel, those he might meet merely holding the opinion that he had had a successful season. Another suspicious circumstance in his case is the fact that the digging he was working gave very poor indications, and he was probably not even making wages.

Mr. S. T. Tingley, manager of the British Columbia Express company, arrived down from Ashcroft last evening. To a TIMES reporter he said that of course they could not be certain that they had got the right man, although circumstances pointed strongly to Rowland. The gold dust found on him tallies very closely with one of the packages taken from the stage, but none of the missing bars were found. When arrested Rowland said he was on his way to Vancouver, and as he was shipping the dust for assay, to be returned to Ashcroft, he would have had to go back there to get it. The gold, nearly $1000, he claims he took out of Scotty's creek, an old digging about 18 miles from Ashcroft, where he had had been for two weeks. The place was never known to pay more than $1 or $1.50 per day, and as the gold appears to be of different colors, his story is not credited. Experts who have seen the dust, say it looks very much like Fraser River amalgam. Rowland has been around Cariboo for two or three years, and last year worked in Scotty's creek without making any better success out of it than any one else. He claims that he went to Cariboo early in the summer by the wagon road, and returned by the Forks Quesnelle and the Horse Fly country. Rowland says he was in the latter country at the time of the robbery. At the time Mr. Tingley left Ashcroft a preliminary examination was being held by Mr. Lemmens, J.P., Government Agent Hussey watching the case for the crown.

CRICKET AT 'FRISCO.

The Warspite Team Beat the Pacifics at That City.

San Francisco on Saturday last was was treated to a cricket match but according to the Examiner the people of that city did not appreciate it enough to turn out in crowds to witness the play. The Examiner says:

Three men dressed in the latest designs in tweeds with check fore-and-aft caps, briarwood pipes, creased pantaloons, rolled up above the tops of their russet shoes just enough to display a small circle of black silk hose, carried their immense silver-headed walking sticks in through the main gate at the old ball grounds on Webster street, Alameda, shortly before 10 o'clock yesterday morning.

Three single glasses were glued to three eyes.

Out on the open ground where in years gone by some of the fiercest battles in baseball in California have been fought, even in the shadow of the very spot on which John Lawrence Sullivan, actor and pugilist, once stood and called balls and strikes until the crowd became so dense that play was suspended and the great man was led around the circle and exhibited like a prize bovine at a country fair, were standing in groups of three or four, almost a dozen well-built, athletic-looking gentlemen. They were all dressed alike, in white flannel suits. A small red cap drawn well down over the forehead and a briarwood pipe completed the costume.

These gentlemen who had attracted and held the admiring gaze of the three men with the three single glasses were the team of cricketers composed of the officers of H.M.S. Warspite.

They were to play cricket with the Pacific Cricket Club eleven.

After them came several specimens of the American small boy and one or two full-grown un-Anglicized Americans.

The small boy looked on in wonder. The men gazed sadly at the half-effaced paths which marked the diamond field on which so many battles had been fought. Then they gazed at the athletic-looking specimens of English nobility, at the upright sticks called wickets, at the three men with the three glasses; they thought of the British beer trust, of the encroachment of British capital on all that is profitable in America and wondered if the mission of the Britishers was to absorb the American national game and displace it with that of England.

When the Pacifics strolled in, Sir Robert Arbuthnot, Bart., captain of the Warspites, turned his clear blue Saxon eye on his opponents. Slowly every other member of the eleven turned and followed the example of their illustrious chief.

They were "sizing" them up.

Lieutenant the Honorable E. S. Stanhope, the next Earl of Chesterfield, bending over Sir Robert Arbuthnot, Bart., said something that caused the chief of the cricketers to smile.

Perhaps he was telling the leader that they had a "cinch" on the game.

It proved to be a harder one than they expected, however, and had to play hard to win with a score of 128 to 117.

THE SITUATION IN LONDON.

Fears Expressed That Other Houses Are Tottering.

LONDON, Nov. 18.—It is rumored that another prominent banking firm is in difficulties on account of its inability to discount its maturing bills. The Financial News expresses the fear that there are many weak spots in the financial world, due to reckless underwriting, and that more than one house is tottering under a load of overwhelming unforeseen liabilities.

The bulk of the bills discounted by the Bank of England this week were endorsed by Messrs Baring Brothers & Co. No case of refusal has been heard of in case of overtime. The banks singled out batches of their bills and employed brokers to meet them. The Bank of England charged but little extra for its accommodations.

LONDON, Nov. 19.—The Times says that no bills drawn on Messrs. Barings after last Saturday by their correspondents will be accepted, but all drawn previously will be recognized. The Bank of England is practically in charge of Messrs. Barings Brothers & Co.'s affairs. It is probable that the firm will be resuscitated.

CITY AND PROVINCIAL.

BOARD OF ALDERMEN.

Business Done by the Civic Fathers at Last Evening's Meeting.

The full board of aldermen with Mayor Grant in the chair, met at the city hall last evening to transact the regular weekly business. Routine work being finished Clerk Dowler read the following

COMMUNICATIONS.

From T. W. Carter, brewer, calling attention to overcharge in water rates. —Ald. McKillican pointed out that in several cases of a like character, the fault had been found to be with the consumer, and not with the meter, and he was in favor of having a notice put in the papers warning water consumers to be careful of the fluid.—The letter was referred to committee.

From T. W. Pierre, stating his patience was worn threadbare by the actions of some bad boys who had destroyed his fences. It was shown that the council had nothing to do with the matter, and that the complainant should take action in the civil court.—The police committee will act, however, to assist Mr. Pierre to punish the offenders.

From Patterson & Webb, asking water service.—Referred to committee.

From Jas. Leigh & Sons, asking for a small portion of rock to be put on Pleasant street.—Referred to committee.

From the sewerage commissioners, asking for $1000 to be placed to their credit at the bank.—Granted.

From E. Lewis, asking when the house numbers will be reading.—A discussion ensued over the matter, and enquiries were made for Mr. Henderson, but no news of him could be obtained, and a motion was made to allow Mr. Northcott to procure numbers and see that they are put up. The hall committee is to act with him.

From Turner, Beeton & Co., calling attention to bad state of sidewalk on Wharf street.—Referred to committee.

From several people asking for street lines.—Granted.

From C. S. King, asking permission to remove portion of sidewalk.—Referred to committee.

From John Teague, on behalf of Victoria Coffee and Spice Mills, asking that a sidewalk be laid down Pembroke street for a short distance.—Granted.

From Turner, Beeton & Co., in re the rider to the verdict given by the coroner's jury in the case of Flannery, deceased, and claiming that their wharves are well protected, but that the wharves should be better lighted.—Filed.

From J. D. Robinson, resigning his position as collector of road tax.—Accepted.

From G. C. Mesher, asking permission to move a stable.—Referred to committee.

WHARF LIGHTING.

From the Attorney-General's office in reference to the unprotected state of the wharf fronts, and lack of light along them. Also calling attention to an article in the TIMES concerning the same.

Mayor Grant pointed out that the city had control over the wharves, and recommended that something be done in the matter.

The street committee was instructed to investigate and report.

From property owners on Kelvin road, asking for extension of water service.—Referred to committee.

From Frank Silvester, asking that sidewalk on Wharf street be repaired. —Referred to committee.

POLICE RULES.

Under the head of deferred business the consideration of the new police rules came up, and on motion were considered clause by clause and passed as a whole, and ordered printed.

NEW BY-LAWS.

The by-law amending the Revenue By-law of 1889 was read a second time and passed.

ELECTRIC MATTERS.

The electric light committee and fire wardens reported that they could see no reason why guard wires should not be placed in certain exposed places over the electric street car overhead wires, and recommended that the same be done.—Report adopted.

POLO PLAYERS.

The mayor reported that he had been asked by several gentlemen that a small portion of Beacon Hill Park be reserved for polo grounds.—Referred to committee.

NEW STREETS.

Ald. Harrison put forward a list of six streets of 40 feet width which he asked might be taken over by the city, as these streets had been opened before the passage of the by-law of 1884 in relation to taking over of streets. The streets he wished taken over were St. James, Cobourg, Rendall, Perry, Phœnix place and Avalon road.

Ald. Vigelius thought that all streets not less than 40 feet in width within the city limits should be taken over.

Ald. Harrison said the list preferred by him included all such streets.

Ald. Wilson thought that the real estate vendors who divided up their land by narrow streets should be discouraged. Certain work had been done on some narrow streets, which almost made it imperative on the city to accept of them, but he was strongly averse to accepting of narrow streets, but under the present circumstances he should favor the measure now before them.

A notice of motion for a by-law to deal with the matter was read.

ROAD TAX COLLECTOR.

Ald. Vigelius moved that Mr. Yates be appointed road tax and license collector, vice Robinson, resigned. Ald. Goudacre seconded.—Motion carried.

STREET CROWDS.

Ald. McKillican drew attention to the crowds which have of late gathered at "the corner," and spoke of the need of something being done in the matter.

WHARF LIGHTING.

Ald. Wilson moved that the law in relation to wharf lighting be carried out.—Carried.

The board then rose.

Merchants Luncheon.

To-Night's Free Lecture.

At Harmony Hall to-night Mr. C. B. Reynolds will give a free lecture on "Religious Exercises in Public Schools." Mr. Reynolds holds to the belief that an unsectarian education is the best, and objects to theology being added to the curriculum of a public school scholar.

Denies It.

Rev. Mr. Crosby has written to this city denying the report that the missionary steamer Glad Tidings carries passengers illegally. The steamer has no passenger carrying certificate. From information received, complaints were made to the authorities that she was breaking the law. This Mr. Crosby denies.

The Ada Sold.

The schooner Ada, formerly of Yokohama, owned at the time by Mr. Gray, now of this port, which was seized by the U. S. cutter in the Behring Sea, and sold with others at Port Townsend, and her name changed to the H. G. Lewis, has been sold in San Francisco to Capt. Minor and others. She will be put in condition for sealing for next season.

New Drug Store.

A new drug store is shortly to be opened in the Telegraph block by Mr. C. E. Jones, who for over two years has been an assistant at Moore & Co's. Mr. Jones has resigned his position and intends to branch out for himself. His former employers and his many friends join in wishing him the prosperity which strict attention to business and steady habits will ensure.

Several Reasons Why.

Why is Northfield coal the best?

1. It is the hardest.
2. Gives a hotter fire and consumes the least fuel.
3. It does not clinker.
4. Free from stone and slate.
5. It makes a cheerful fire burning free and clear.

Scarcity of Crime.

The police have had a very quiet time for the last few days, as the appearance of the police court docket shows. This morning a case of an Indian for having a bottle of whiskey in his possession having been disposed of by paying a fine of $25, the first case of assault called for some time came up. The prosecutor, L. Willey, swore that one Jno. Sullivan had used insulting language to him, and so his honor imposed a fine of $5 and $2 costs.

Y.M.C.A. At Home.

Last evening's "At Home" in the Y.M.C.A.'s rooms was by no means the least pleasant of the series so far. Miss Beeton had charge of the evening's programme, and of course it was one of much excellence. The young men entered into several choruses. Miss Cridge kindly sang, and Mrs. O'Brien and Miss Russel played a piano duet. The attendance was large, and appreciative. The next event will take place December 3, when a gymnastic exhibition will be given.

Another Race Made.

Articles of agreement were signed by Alex. McLean and Hugh McKay, to row a three mile and a turn race in outrigged skiffs over a course in Vancouver harbor on Saturday, Nov. 29th, at 3 p. m. The stakes are $500 a side, of which $100 has already been put up by each party, the balance to be up twenty-four hours previous to the race. It is currently believed among sporting men that McKay will retrieve the defeat at McLean's hands last Saturday over the Victoria course.

River Steamer Beached

On her last downward trip the steamer Delaware, the greyhound of the Fraser river, when opposite the depot at Mission, about a mile and a half above the railway bridge, ran against a rock which stove a hole in her bottom. Capt. Insley at once beached her, and there she will lay until the damage is repaired. Her passengers were taken off safely and came down by the Pacific express. The freight will be taken down by some of the river steamers. In a few days at most she will resume her trips.

Better than a Directory.

Now that all the real estate men have shown themselves sufficiently enterprising as to provide themselves with a first-class map of Victoria, time can be spared to serve private people. Hibben & Co.'s map of the city and surrounding district should be in every business house, and also in every private dwelling. For the latter purpose the map has been gotten out on a smaller scale, price 50 cents. It is better than a directory, and much handier in finding one's way round town.

Prophetic Lectures.

Mr. Grant's "Prophetic Lectures" in the Courtney street Presbyterian church are increasing in interest, as he advances in opening the wonderful things contained in the prophetic scriptures. He makes the subject so plain, by the aid of the great chart of history, one almost wonders why these things have not been seen and presented to us before. That which was before dull and neglected in the Bible, now becomes most thrillingly interesting. It seems like a new book, and all who love it will be thankful if they have heard these lectures. Last evening, Mr. Grant explained the prophecies of Daniel relating to the fourth great Gentile kingdom —the Roman. Beginning with Augustus Cæsar, the first Roman emperor, B. C. 31, he traced the remarkable correspondence between the prophecy and the history, as laid down upon the chart, till he reached prophetic events fulfilled in 1870. The intelligent audience sat amazed, as they saw the unmistakable evidence, that the historic events precisely filled the prophetic mould. They could not deny but that it had been proved that the Bible is divinely inspired.

Mr. Grant's prophetic lectures have not only demonstrated the inspiration of the Bible, but it would seem equally true, from the same premises, that he has brought us to the startling conclusion that we are very near the end of the present order of things, when a great change is about to take place as pointed out in the sacred prophecies. He quoted Mr. Spurgeon as saying: "We stand on the borders of a new era. The present dispensation is nearly finished." "For that day I look. It is to the bright horizon of that second coming I turn my eyes."

He also quoted as follows from Mr. H. Grattan Guiness, of London, who is said to be the ablest writer and lecturer on prophecy in Europe: "Now in the close of this time of the end, the clouds of obscurity have completely rolled away. The whole plan and order of events; the succession of empires; the limits of chronology; the scales of measurement; the nature of fulfilments; all have become in the combined light of facts and of analogies, so clear, that he who runs may read." This evening Mr. Grant will commence the examination of the symbolic prophecies, given to John upon the isle of Patmos, relative to Rome.

ST. SAVIOR'S CHURCH.

Plans Now Complete for a Neat Though Complete Structure.

The plans for St. Savior's church, by T. B. Norgate & Co., show that the projected structure will be a neat parish church of modern Gothic design, plain but tasteful, and although severe in its simplicity a very complete edifice. The building will be overtopped by a neat tower, the proportions of which are architecturally correct.

The main body of the church will be 50 feet by 22, with a seating capacity for 250. The chancel, altar, sub-altar and screen will be finished in the best modern style. The walls are to be wainscotted and plastered. The ceiling will be of the accepted church pattern, with its cedar timbers stained and oiled.

The plans have been prepared with regard to the exigencies of the parish, and while giving a neat and substantial building, do not call for an outlay of a sum of money beyond the ability of the parishioners to raise. Although not a large church, the details of construction have been faithfully observed, proper lighting and ventilation being faithfully attended to. There is every probability that before next winter the lot secured on Henry street will be occupied by the new St. Saviour's Church.

FROM STORMY SEAS.

The Schooner Triumph Returns From An Experimental Trip.

On the 19th of September the sealing schooner Triumph, Capt. Clarence Cox, left this port on an expermental sealing trip to the north during the fall months. Since she left here she has been spoken but once, on the 27th of September by the schooner Lily. Nothing has been heard of her since until this morning, when one of her boats came ashore and reported that the schooner was coming into port.

The voyage was a very severe one, the weather being at times fearful, and the cold in Behring Sea intense. On the trip up, heavy seas were shipped, and the sealing boats were smashed, two of them so badly as to be useless. After Behring Sea was entered, it was found impossible to do any sealing of consequence on account of the bad weather and severe cold, and financially the trip was a failure, only 83 seals being taken. It has been proven, however that the sea is not suited for late fall and winter work, and the long vexed question has been set to rest.

No attempt to land on any of the seal islands was intended or made, Capt. Cox confining himself to legitimate sealing. The German schooner Adele, Capt. Hansen, was sighted in the sea, and reported a catch of about 80 seals. He also attributed the small catch to the bad weather. Finding that a further stay in the sea was useless, Capt. Cox headed the Triumph south, and this port was reached to-day. No accidents or sickness disturbed the routine aboard the vessel, and all hands are glad to be back from the cold and stormy Behring sea.

SUCH A JOKE!

Cameron has beaten himself this time. He's sold me goods $2.00 too cheap. I know it, because I priced the same line of goods at another store before going to Cameron's. Ha! ha! ha! ha! he! he! he! he! he! ho! ho!

THE JOKE IS

that our much tickled man has paid Cameron's usual price, which is always lower than elsewhere.
